

PANGBOURNE MEDICAL PRACTICE CHARTER

How we keep your records confidential

Everyone working for the NHS has a legal duty to keep information about you confidential.

We have a duty to

- Maintain full and accurate records of the care we provide you
- Keep records about you confidential, secure and accurate

We will not share information that identifies you for any reason, unless:

- You ask us to do so
- We ask and you give us specific permission
- We have to do this by law
- We have special permission for health of research purposes or
- We have special permission because the interests of the public are thought to be of greater importance than your confidentiality

Our guiding principle is that we are holding your records in STRICT CONFIDENCE

Who are our partner organisations?

We may share information with the following main partner organisations:

- Strategic Health Authorities
- NHS Trusts (Hospital, PCTs)

We wish to give you the best possible service. We can achieve this by working together. Help us to help you.

WE WILL

Treat you as an individual, giving you courtesy and respect at all times

Involve you in decisions concerning the management of your problem or illness giving you a clear explanation of the types of treatment available.

When you attend, ensure you are seen for your appointment in good time, informing you of any prolonged delay

Give you full information about the services we offer particularly where your health and care is directly affected.

Give you access to your health records, subject to any limitation in the law, regarding them as strictly confidential.

WE ASK YOU TO

Treat the doctors, their families and their practice staff with courtesy and respect

Ask if you do not understand or are unsure about your treatment.

Tell us if you cannot attend your appointment.

Help us by only asking for a home visit when the patient is too ill to come to the surgery

Help yourself and your family keep fit and well by adopting a healthy lifestyle.

How We Use Your Health Records

Why we collect information about you

In the National Health Service we aim to provide you with the highest quality health care. To do this we must keep records about you, your health and the care we have provided or plan to provide to you.

These records may include:

- Basic details about you, such as address, date of birth, next of kin
- Contact we have had with you such as clinical visits
- Notes and reports about your health
- Details and records about your treatment and care
- Results of X-rays, laboratory tests etc
- Relevant information from people who care for you and know you well, such as health professionals and relatives

It is good practice for people in the NHS who provide care to:

- Discuss and agree with you what they are going to record about you
- Give you a copy of letters they are writing about you; and
- Show you what they have recorded about you, if you ask

How your records are used

The people who care for you use your records to:

- Provide a good basis for all health decisions made by you and care professionals
- Allow you to work with those providing care
- Make sure your care is safe and effective, and
- Work effectively with others providing you with care

Others may also need to use records about you to:

- Check the quality of care (such as clinical audit)
- Protect the health of the general public
- Keep track of NHS spending
- Manage the health service

- Help investigate any concerns or complaints you or your family have about your health care
- Teach health workers and
- Help with research

Some information will be held centrally to be used for statistical purposes. In these instances we take strict measures to ensure that individual patients cannot be identified.

We use anonymous information, wherever possible, but on occasions, we may use personally identifiable information for essential NHS purposes such as research and auditing. However, this information will only be used with your consent, unless the law requires us to pass on the information.

You have the right

You have the right to confidentiality under the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA), the Human Rights Act 1998 and the common law of confidence (the Disability Discrimination and the Race Relations Acts may also apply)

You also have the right to ask for a copy of all records about you (you may have to pay a fee)

- Your request must be made in writing to the organisation holding your information
- There may be a charge to have a printed copy of the information held about you
- We are required to respond to you within 40 days
- You will need to give adequate information (for example full name, address, date of birth, NHS number etc.)
- You will be required to provide ID before any information is released to you

If you think anything is inaccurate or incorrect, please inform the organisation holding your information.
